To whom it may concern:

As a student at one of the most prestigious private schools in Sofia, I have had the wonderful opportunity of having Eva Pillossof as my Chemistry teacher for more than three years. During this process I have built an incredibly good opinion of her. She is not only an inspiring professional educator who can present a vast amount of information in an exceptionally understandable way, but also a very caring and compassionate person that is willing to offer you help and motivation at any time during the course of your education.

I distinctly remember that one of the first things she told us, was to call her by her first name, which was really unusual, but made me and my fellow schoolmates feel notably more comfortable with her and in combination with her modern and advanced method of teaching, contributed a lot in order for us to comprehend the presented material in a better way.

As a conclusion to all that I have stated previously, I can say with confidence, that adding Eva Pillossof to your team will only prove beneficial since she is an admirable professional and a lovely human being.

Sincerely,
